

MUNTERS EXPANDS ITS PORTFOLIO WITH NEW GAS HEATERS

Munters (MTRS) broadens its offering within climate control solutions for the food production industry by adding new heater lines manufactured by Winterwarm

Munters Group, the global leader in energy efficient air treatment and climate solutions, today announced an agreement with Winterwarm making Munters the distributor of Winterwarm gas heaters to the agricultural market.

Winterwarm designs and manufactures gas and oil heaters for industrial, commercial and agricultural buildings. The product portfolio includes the DXC heater, an indirect fired heater with a closed combustion system: heating according to this concept means no CO₂ and no water vapour in the house. This has two important effects: a decrease of the energy consumption as less ventilation is required, as well as improved animal health due to a dryer environment.

The agreement includes DXC heaters as well as Winterwarm's direct fired gas heater line. The two product lines share many key components allowing easy installation and maintenance.

"1 of 7 meals globally originates from installations where Munters provides climate control. There is a strong demand in the agricultural sector for energy efficient and clean climate control solutions. Heating is extremely important for the welfare of animal and plants in many regions of the World. Munters and Winterwarm will work together to achieve these goals", says Peter Gisel-Ekdahl, President Business Area AgHort.
